We encourage all delegates to participate actively, remain open to diverse perspectives, and make the most of every opportunity this conference offers.

VISION & MISSION

Vision

To cultivate a generation of globally aware and responsible leaders by creating a platform that inspires intellectual curiosity, fosters diplomacy, and encourages collaborative problem-solving. The conference envisions empowering young minds to think beyond borders, challenge conventional perspectives, and contribute meaningfully to shaping a more inclusive, sustainable, and progressive global future.

Mission

This conference is committed to delivering a transformative experience that extends beyond traditional academic engagement. Through immersive simulations of global institutions, it aims to bridge the gap between theoretical knowledge and real-world application.

Our mission is to:

- Provide a dynamic environment that closely mirrors real-world diplomacy and international decision-making processes.
- Encourage delegates to engage deeply with global issues through well-researched arguments and critical analysis.
- Develop essential skills such as leadership, negotiation, public speaking, and policy formulation.
- Foster a culture of inclusivity, mutual respect, and meaningful dialogue among participants.
- Inspire delegates to evolve into confident individuals who can think independently and act responsibly on global issues.

EVENT OVERVIEW

The conference is a 2-day simulation of international diplomacy and global governance. It is structured to replicate the functioning of major global institutions where delegates represent countries and deliberate on complex international issues.

Throughout the conference, delegates will participate in formal debates, moderated discussions, and informal negotiations. These sessions are designed to simulate real-world diplomatic environments where collaboration, persuasion, and strategy play a crucial role.

RULES OF PROCEDURE

The Rules of Procedure form the backbone of committee functioning and ensure that all discussions are conducted in an organised and respectful manner.

Delegates will engage in different formats of debate:

Formal Debate: Structured speeches delivered within a fixed time frame, allowing delegates to present their positions clearly.

Moderated Caucus: Short, focused discussions on specific subtopics, encouraging rapid exchange of ideas.

Unmoderated Caucus: Informal sessions where delegates negotiate, collaborate, and draft working papers or resolutions.

Delegates may also utilise procedural tools such as:

- Point of Information
- Point of Order
- Point of Personal Privilege

Understanding and effectively using these procedures will help delegates participate more confidently and contribute meaningfully to committee discussions.

STRUCTURE

Model United Nations (MUN) is an academic simulation of the United Nations, where students represent countries, organisations, or other assigned stakeholders to discuss international issues. The conference follows established diplomatic procedures, allowing delegates to engage in debate, negotiate solutions, and develop resolutions on global challenges.

The Secretariat

The Secretariat is responsible for the overall planning, coordination, and management of the conference. It oversees administrative operations, ensures the smooth functioning of committees, and supports delegates and the organising team throughout the event.

The Executive Board

The Executive Board manages the proceedings of individual committees and ensures that debates follow the established rules of procedure. It typically consists of a Chairperson, Vice-Chairperson, and Rapporteur, depending on the committee's requirements.

Led by the Chairperson, the Executive Board moderates debate, maintains decorum, evaluates delegate performance, and guides the committee towards meaningful outcomes.

The Delegates

Delegates represent assigned countries, organisations, or individuals and are responsible for researching their respective positions, delivering speeches, negotiating with other participants, and proposing solutions to the issues under discussion.

Through diplomacy, collaboration, and evidence-based argumentation, delegates work towards building consensus and drafting resolutions that address the committee's agenda.

Committee Sessions

Committee sessions form the core of the MUN conference. Delegates participate in structured discussions, formal speeches, moderated caucuses, and informal negotiations to examine the agenda and develop collective solutions.

Key stages of committee proceedings include:

Roll Call:	Establishing the attendance of delegates and confirming their participation in the committee.
Agenda Setting:	Determining the order in which topics will be discussed, where applicable.
General Speakers' List:	Providing delegates with an opportunity to present their country's position and outline their proposed approaches to the agenda.
Moderated Caucus:	Facilitating focused, time-bound discussions on specific aspects of the agenda.
Unmoderated Caucus:	Allowing delegates to negotiate informally, form alliances, exchange ideas, and collaborate on draft resolutions.
Draft Resolution and Voting:	Enabling delegates to present proposed solutions, discuss amendments, and vote on resolutions according to the committee's rules of procedure.

The Resolution Process

Resolutions are the primary outcome of committee deliberations. Delegates collaborate to draft formal documents outlining proposed solutions to the issues being discussed.

These documents undergo discussion, negotiation, and, where applicable, amendments before being put to a vote. The process encourages consensus-building, critical thinking, and practical approaches to international cooperation.

RULES

The functioning of Model United Nations (MUN) relies on established rules of procedure that ensure structured debate, diplomatic conduct, and fair participation. These rules guide delegates through formal discussions, negotiations, and decision-making while maintaining order, mutual respect, and adherence to committee protocols.

Rules of Procedure

MUN committees follow a formal set of procedures governing speeches, motions, points, caucuses, and voting. The Chairperson presides over committee sessions, recognises delegates, maintains decorum, and ensures that discussions proceed in accordance with the committee's rules.

Diplomatic Conduct and Protocol

Delegates are expected to maintain professionalism, respect differing viewpoints, and communicate through diplomatic language. Personal attacks, disruptive behaviour, and disrespect towards fellow delegates or the Executive Board are not permitted. All participants must represent their assigned countries or roles accurately and responsibly.

Debate and Discussion

Formal debate allows delegates to present their positions through the General Speakers' List. Moderated caucuses facilitate focused discussions on specific subtopics, while unmoderated caucuses provide opportunities for informal negotiations, collaboration, and the development of proposed solutions.

Points and Motions

Points and motions help delegates participate effectively and manage committee proceedings.

Points of Personal Privilege: Address personal discomfort or circumstances that prevent a delegate from participating effectively.

Points of Parliamentary Inquiry: Seek clarification regarding the rules of procedure from the Chairperson, where permitted.

Points of Order: Raise concerns about a possible procedural irregularity.

Motions: Propose procedural actions, such as opening debate, introducing a caucus, or moving into voting procedure, subject to the committee's rules.

Decision-Making and Voting

Delegates work towards developing draft resolutions through negotiation, collaboration, and consensus-building. Once a draft resolution is introduced and the committee enters voting procedure, delegates vote according to the applicable rules. Voting requirements, amendment procedures, and the threshold for passing a resolution depend on the committee and its rules of procedure.

Working Methods

Formal Sessions: Structured proceedings in which delegates deliver speeches, raise points and motions, and participate in moderated discussions.

Informal Negotiations: Collaborative discussions during unmoderated caucuses, where delegates exchange ideas, build alliances, and work on draft resolutions.

Drafting and Resolution: Delegates prepare working papers and draft resolutions outlining proposed solutions. These documents may be reviewed, amended, and voted upon according to committee procedures.

Professionalism and Compliance

All delegates must follow the instructions of the Chairperson and the established rules of procedure throughout the conference. Punctuality, preparation, respectful communication, and active participation are essential to maintaining a productive diplomatic environment.

CODE OF CONDUCT

The conference is founded on the principles of professionalism, respect, and diplomatic integrity. All participants are expected to uphold these values and contribute to a constructive and inclusive environment.

Delegates are expected to maintain a high standard of behaviour both inside and outside committee sessions. Respect for diverse opinions, cultures, and perspectives is essential to meaningful diplomatic engagement.

Participants must:

- Communicate respectfully and professionally at all times
- Avoid any form of offensive or discriminatory behaviour
- Follow the directions of the Executive Board and organising team
- Maintain decorum and discipline throughout the conference

Delegates are also expected to adhere to the formal dress code, reflecting the seriousness and professionalism of the event.
