Time: 2:00 PM

School of Computing & Engineering celebrates International Day of Happiness by organizing a StandUp Comedy Event for the faculties and students of SCSE.

Many people don't realize the powerful life skills they can take away from a stand-up comedy class. It's about more than being funny; it helps you become more comfortable with who you are and more present with others. It's also a "secret weapon" for any working professionals, as it has been proven people are 2.5 times more likely to remember what you tell them if you make them laugh. Attendees will learn real world skills that are invaluable for any working professional. Stand-up will improve your public speaking, pitches, presentations, and more importantly, increase your confidence. The participation of students were remarkable and the students made a great day not only for students but as well as judges. Judges had a hard time yto decide winners of this competetions. But in the end it was a great event organised by SCSE.
