About the Department

Department of Mass Communication at Galgotias University has been included in the best five media private Institutions by a reputed magazine India Today for the promotion of practical and field-based education. It provides state-of-art facilities for the students to contribute to quality-based media content. It offers ample opportunities to gain practical work experience through industry-oriented curriculum, internships, Industrial visits, and placements in various prominent media organizations and also organize the interaction with leading professionals. The programs include transmedia storytelling, strategic communication, Fiction & TV production, advertising, corporate communication, public speaking and street-play communication research, and other traditional courses of Mass Communication. We also offer specializations in various subjects like Journalism, Entertainment & strategic communication. During the study, the students are given both theoretical as well as practical knowledge. The course also provides hands-on training to build and develop media skills to give an international perspective to newer learning standards. The course imparts aspiring filmmakers with the latest knowledge and techniques in Film Technology. It also provides training in multidimensional aspects of the Film and Television Industry while helping students to acquire the required skills, confidence, and poise. The courses are designed to develop students into mature professionals equipped with the required abilities to meet their professional goals.

An amalgamation of Industry experienced & research-based faculty members facilitate students to produce high-quality project works to match professional standards and goals. We also provide students with practical exposure right from the beginning, so that the students can build confidence, enhance their personality and make a journalistic approach towards their careers. We are focused on developing critical, employed intelligence in crafting communication. Students are also benefited from periodic visits to various media houses and experiment with the working environment of various media and entertainment houses.

Message from the Head of the Department

“Think as a trendsetter and not as a follower”

Innovations in information and communication technologies with traditional mass media are changing the way we live, work, play, and learn. Since its inception at this university, The Department of Mass Communication (DOMC) has been at the forefront of efforts to explore these social, cultural, rhetorical, and organizational processes as we are preparing our students to understand and be able to study and manage the media and communication revolution in society, education, politics, management, marketing, government, and non-governmental institutions.

From its humble beginnings focusing on professional training, the department has grown and expanded its academic base by launching undergraduate, post-graduate, and Ph.D. programs. There is a high demand for our programs based on their inter-disciplinarity and the blend of intellectual rigor and professional practical induction. Critical thinking, creativity, and innovation also undergird the programs and our graduates leave with a holistic grounding. The curriculum at the department provides opportunities for the students to develop a strong theoretical understanding of the communication field, and a comprehensive knowledge base in the tools and techniques of mass communication that enhances their potential to be creative and innovative for the growing media market.

Innovatively designed courses are a combination of cognitive and skill-based learning.

DOMC offers a specialization in Journalism, Entertainment, and Strategic communication. Adequate media industry exposure is ensured through projects, field visits, seminars, workshops, and special lectures. Students participate frequently in television and radio programs and film festivals. Internship opportunities are planned as part of the curriculum to help students acquire practical learning skills. From time-to-time top Academicians, Filmmakers, Journalists, and Advertising professionals visit the university to share their knowledge and experience.

An institutionalized system of extracurricular activities prevails both at the department and university levels. School-level clubs organized and run by students exist in the areas of films, acting, theatre, singing, public speaking, and debates. To ensure that the students are grounded in the ethos of Indian nationalism and culture, students and faculty regularly organize events to celebrate the idea of one nation.

Dr. A. Ram Pandey

Head,
Department of Mass Communication

Vision

To be a recognized premier Department of Mass Communication for innovation, creativity, holistic education, and trans-disciplinary research.
