Problem Identified: Each and every human being on this planet share their thoughts, ideas, views by different modes but the foremost thing required for the transfer of these thoughts and ideas is the means of communication some are blessed with power of speaking and listening but those who are not, so we created a prototype to help them by calling it as "GESTURE VOCALIZER FOR DEAF AND DUMB". The main objective of this prototype is to create a bridge between differently abled communities and us.
Problem Details: 1. The prototype is designed in such a way that it helps to investigate the difficulties face by differently able communities (deaf and dumb) during the communication with us.
Solutions Suggested: In this prototype we are concluding the details by proposing few words that sincethis project is used to convert sign language to voice as well as text. Through this wecan create a bridge between differently abled and normal people having hearing aid, dumbness or are blind making them differently-abled.

Problem Identified: Advanced Hand Gesture Controlled Operating Device
Problem Details:
1. To meet the demands of high speed and accuracy, many industries employ autonomous robots. However, in accordance to specific needs and designs, the use of semi-autonomous robots also becomes pertinent
Solutions Suggested:
The operation is premised on wireless communication where stimulation from hand gesture is projected upon the robot over the RF link (RF transmitter-receiver pair).

<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Problem Details: Drinking clean water is very important for human health. Big companies like Bisleri and Aquafina uses machine for cleaning these bottles but small companies which has only single unit does cannot use this machine because of it's cost. The cost of this machine is about 1.5 lakhs. These companies wash the bottles merely by detergent and water.• We all know that these bottles cannot be cleaned completely by above method. The water in it gets contaminated by many bacteria or virus as lot of dirt, fungus, bacteria gets deposited in the bottle which can make us and our family fall sick. Knowingly or unknowingly we will be consuming that contaminated water which will lead to several waterborne internal diseases like - diarrhoea, typhoid and cholera.• Not just waterborne diseases but uncleaned water tank leading to contamination of water can cause various harmful skin diseases to you.

Solutions Suggested: The water can cleaner was used to clean the water cans by using rotating brushes. This method was more effective and safe than the conventional methods. This method is capable to clean water cans within less time and human efforts.

The device can be used by the rickshaw pullers can vendors and even common people for cleaning purpose of the can for safe drinking water..

Problem Identified: DESIGN OF HYDRAULIC OPERATED BENDING MACHINE
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Problem Details: The aim of project is to get effective hydraulic bending machine by using only one hydraulic cylinder as a result the machine become light in weight and low in cost. The main objective of this project is • To design a new bending machine with new feature and simplified operation by handling the hydraulic cylinder reaction force for the purpose of bending. • To maximize the hydraulic action and reaction force by the help of right angle lever. • To get a multipurpose machine that is sheet bending, pipe bending and press by changing die.

Solutions Suggested: The project entitled Wind Based Water Pump is used to draw water using Wind. In this project we have proposed a research on a wind turbine to irrigate the land where the water level is so below the surface of ground. The main parts in this project are Rotating blades, Gear and wheel setup, Cylinder and piston arrangement, One way Valves, Suction, delivery pipes, foot valve and Wind direction pointer.

The vanes in the turbine are rotated with constant speed. The gear setup can be adjusted to control the speed of the fly wheel. A connecting rod is connected with the fly wheel. The connecting rod will move up and down when the fly wheel is rotated.

A cylinder and piston arrangement is connected with the connecting rod. When the rod is moving up and down, the piston inside the cylinder moves up and down and thereby operates a one way valve. The one way valve is closed when the piston moves up and opened when the piston moves down.

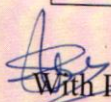

A foot valve is connected at the end of the suction pipe. Inside the foot valve, there is a one way valve. The one way valve is closed when the piston moves up and opened when the piston moves down.

Thus there is a alternate flow of water in the delivery pipe.

Since this uses no electric power and fuel, this is very cheap and best.

Solutions Suggested: This exploration paved the way for the significant research and the approach has found its applications in a plenty of areas ranging from treatment of wastewater, self-cleaning, disinfection, air purification and water splitting Which further attracted significant search for the photocatalytic materials in past few decades having high chemical stability with no toxicity, cost effective and efficient etc. . Till date the potential heterogeneous semi-conductor photo catalysts such as TiO_2 , ZnO , CdS , WO_3 , Fe_2O_3 , Bi_2WO_6 , BiOCl , LaMnO_3 , and KNbO_3 have garnered considerable interest among the researchers . In addition, the different composites made-up form the above semiconductor materials also have received consider-able interest. For instance, Drew et al. reported a hybrid of $\text{TiO}_2/\text{Pt-Ru}$ as photocatalyst and proposed it for the boosting cell performance. The composites of $\text{CdS}/\text{TiO}_2/\text{WO}_3$ have been investigated extensively as a potential photocatalytic material. In contrary, the above discussed photocatalytic semiconductors are afflicted by many disadvantages and constraints. For example, low photocatalytic response under visible light and high recombination rate of active charge carriers. First drawback emanates due to the large band gaps of the materials, like TiO_2 and ZnO which make them ultraviolet (UV) irradiation active. On the other side, high recombination rate is due to the low mobility of active charge carriers for the material.

Problem Identified: DESIGN OF HYDRAULIC OPERATED BENDING MACHINE
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Problem Details: The aim of project is to get effective hydraulic bending machine by using only one hydraulic cylinder as a result the machine become light in weight and low in cost. The main objective of this project is • To design a new bending machine with new feature and simplified operation by handling the hydraulic cylinder reaction force for the purpose of bending. • To maximize the hydraulic action and reaction force by the help of right angle lever. • To get a multipurpose machine that is sheet bending, pipe bending and press by changing die. • To get light weight and low cost machine. • High competitive marketable machine.

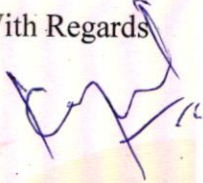

Solutions Suggested: In this machine the whole operation is controlled by single hydraulic cylinder then the machine become simple in feature and operation as well as low in cost and light in weight machine. Hydraulic cylinder backward force is handled for the purpose of bending. The piston forward and cylinder backward force are multiplied by the mechanical advantage of right angle lever.

Problem Identified: Social networking has had an important influence on messaging regarding crises: News and information move much faster, most obviously, meaning that companies need to monitor problems and possible disasters more regularly and respond faster when something bad happens. .
Problem Details: A company's media and crisis relations work according to various logics. The media are considered to be more entertainment-driven, while the company only attempts to remain trustworthy and publish data until it is checked. If the crisis happens without any warning signs, does this disparity in reasoning and in framing a crisis persist?
Solutions Suggested: In times of unprecedented crises, this study aims to develop the roadmap for further studies in the field of media frame-alignment and crisis communication. It cannot be said to be indicative of all events and crises of the same nature due to the fact that this particular study performs its analysis on one particular crisis. In addition, evaluating the first week significantly reduced the data collection and may have left out certain other significant aspects. 40 Nonetheless, more research should be carried out to validate the findings seen in this research and shed further light on the mechanism.

Problem Details: This project supports the notion that stories can be used to share diverse experiences and build cultural understanding. It is developed from a case study of a module which teaches and practices story-making and story-telling to develop cross-cultural communication and understanding. The paper illustrates a staged process of teaching and learning through stories, reflecting upon our experience at each stage. It explores our role as story-tellers as we engage in a field trip in Indonesia and use stories of our own lives to develop communication with our hosts, encouraging interaction and dialogue about the commonalities and differences in our lives.
Solutions Suggested: This findings I uncovered from the research interviews will not only help illuminate my understanding of how I can use oral storytelling to help students attain cultural and cross-cultural understandings, but equally serves to enlighten other educators who seek to purposefully infuse oral storytelling into their teaching practice. As I have established in my research methodology chapter, I view the research interviews as stories that are open to interpretation and not as data that reveal objective truths.

Problem Details:	BIG DATA IN MEDIA COMMUNICATION
While we may not see humanoid robots acting as teachers within the next decade, there are many projects already in the works that use computer intelligence to help students and teachers get more out of the educational experience. For decades, science fiction authors, futurists, and movie makers alike have been predicting the amazing (and sometimes catastrophic) changes that will arise with the advent of widespread artificial intelligence. So far, AI hasn't made any such crazy waves, and in many ways has quietly become ubiquitous in numerous aspects of our daily lives. From the intelligent sensors that help us take perfect pictures, to the automatic parking features in cars, to the sometimes-frustrating personal assistants in smartphones, artificial intelligence of one kind or another is all around us, all the time.
Solutions Suggested: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Artificial intelligence can automate basic activities in education, like grading. 2. Educational software can be adapted to student needs. 3. Students could get additional support from AI tutors. 4. AI-driven programs can give students and educators helpful feedback.

Solutions Suggested: Cross-cultural communication is just one (albeit important) aspect of an organization's overall communication strategy, and improving in this area can be a great first step in maximizing employee and business performance overall. In addition to the tips listed above, learning the foundations of corporate communications can provide you with the skills needed to understand all of the factors that influence communication in THE workplace. Earning a master's degree in corporate communications can help you do just that. North eastern's Corporate and Organizational Communications program, in particular, is designed to instil students with the theoretical foundations of communication theory, as well as the practical skills necessary to excel professionally. Solutions Suggested: India is a country with most extreme varieties regarding geological dissemination, culture, rank, religion, language and convictions. With these significant territories of varieties, there are a huge number of minor assortments of sub standing, dialects and tongues. In such a country, we are as yet following a solitary and traditional telecom framework for a colossal populace of a 1000 million. The data and amusement needs of these numerous individuals have been attempted to be satisfied with just two telecasters; All India Radio and Doordarshan with upwards of 15 stations since long and now with many private telecasters who don't provide food the public requirements of data just as diversion however their own business advantages which is a lot of clear too. All these media are dealing with the thought of broadcasting which covers wide topographical territory just as huge populace at a one given time. The present circumstance requested some adjustment in the situation and thus as an elective medium, the idea of Narrowcasting has been developed which really works with an attention on the requirements of the local area of a particular territory. Duration: Jul 2019 – June 2020 12 months
Problem Identified: BIG DATA ANALYTICS IN MEDIA COMMUNICATION
Problem Details:
1. Data has become a valuable global commodity. But it is much more than simply information: in expert hands, it is intelligence. Already it is helping accelerate the development of robust responses to some of the most pressing challenges of our time: climate change/variability, food insecurity and malnutrition, and environmental degradation. It is transforming the world of genomics and crop breeding and revolutionizing disciplines from climate modelling to agronomy. It is helping refine policies and improve lives. The smart/wise/effective use of data will be one of the most important tools for achieving the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals.
Solutions Suggested:
Module #1: Organize: A wide range of data and analytics opportunities are becoming available in CGIAR and its partners, yet not many of them are fully utilized for developing insights and impact due to inadequate data management.
Module#2: Convene: The Platform will implement an annual CGIAR Big Data and ICT Convention where representatives from Centres and CRPs will share information, develop joint initiatives and collaborate with key external actors in the big data space.

Science communication is a tool that can bridge the gap between science and society. Efficient science communication reaches out to different social spheres and various generations of the population. Public understanding of science is crucial for the further development of society. When the public understands why it is important to set up new measures in various life areas, it is more willing to support them and carry them out. The knowledge for these new measures is very often generated by research.

Problem Identified: Development of skills in science communication is a well-acknowledged gap in graduate training, but the constraints that accompany research (limited time, resources, and knowledge of opportunities) make it challenging to acquire these proficiencies. Furthermore, advisors and institutions may find it difficult to support graduate students adequately in these efforts. The result is fewer career and societal benefits because students have not learned to communicate research effectively beyond their scientific peers. To help overcome these hurdles, we developed a practical approach to incorporating broad science communication into any graduate-school time line.
Problem Details: The approach we outline offers graduate students manageable options for gaining science communication skills and experiences regardless of departmental support, which can be tailored to their interests and career goals. Graduate Student Science Communication hope access to an expanded universe of communication tools and a concrete planning strategy will empower more students to overcome barriers to engagement and incorporate broad science communication in their graduate education.
Solutions Suggested: 1. Development of skills in science communication. 2. Educational software can be adapted to student needs.

Problem Identified: Lack of public awareness and failure of the law and its various mechanisms in resolving the issue.
Problem Details: The advancement of the technology and the dynamism of legal world provides outlook of privacy and data protection issues in this recent era. Privacy is something that is not to interfere to the interest of others. Privacy is became a concern of every individual due to technological advancement and it also emphasizes narrowly for protection of data. Data protection emphasis individual liberty and these individual's liberty is under threat by the interference of the stranger. The growing social media and technology have been a threat to the privacy of humans. Privacy in one sense not only means the right to be left alone but, it also includes the duty of the information holder not to reveal the personal information such as medical or financial status of an individual
Solutions Suggested: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ➤ Use extra security measures for portable devices (including laptop computers) and portable electronic media containing sensitive or critical info: Encryption Extra physical security. ➤ Even portable devices and media with encrypted PII must have strict physical security. ➤ Securely delete personal identity information (PII) and other sensitive data when it is no longer needed for business purposes. ➤ Minimizing the amount of sensitive data stored reduces risk in the case of theft

Problem Identified: Lack of public awareness and failure of the law and its various mechanisms in resolving the issue.
Problem Details: The advancement of the technology and the dynamism of legal world provides outlook of privacy and data protection issues in this recent era. Of course, no system is perfect and, depending on one's perspective, progress can also be viewed as regression. This is especially true today, where one faces multiple threats to IP rights, and where the policy issues being raised cannot always be resolved to everyone's satisfaction. This project assesses the issues that have recently cropped up in India in the copyright regime of Media companies.
Solutions Suggested: The media industry itself is most definitely ready to take up the battle. The industry can be expected to be well equipped to tackle more issues as and when they arise in future. Given experiences so far, areas such as contract management and arbitration and technology measures require special attention.

Project Closure Report

Co- Investigator Team Members: PARAMITA CHOUDHURY
Duration: 12 months
Problem Identified: Lack of public awareness and failure of the law and its various mechanisms in resolving the issue.
Problem Details: The Indian media and entertainment industry has been reeling under the ill effects of piracy which blatantly delves into copyright infringement. This has a ripple effect on the industry in terms of impacting profitability resulting in lower capital investment lesser film production lower job creation. Also, infringed copies of film appear online within hours of release of film and affects box office performance of the film.
Solutions Suggested: The registration of copyright works may be encouraged since it is found that as of now very few cases are registered. The software copyright holders should adopt a corporate license system for using a particular software in the place of 'one software-one PC' system. The copyright industry associations/copyright societies should launch an extensive campaign through print and electronic media highlighting the adversities associated with the piracy. Since the direct loser due to copyright piracy are the rightholders, the prime responsibility of protecting their copyrights lie with the rightholders themselves. Firstly, the rightholders should take enough precaution to protect copyright works. In case violations come to their notice/knowledge, they should file complaints with the police.

Problem Identified: Lack of public awareness and failure of the law and its various mechanisms in resolving the issue.
Problem Details: Software assists in accomplishing various tasks with computers. In the recent times, there has been an unprecedented increase in the unethical use of software, unauthorized copying of software, unauthorized viewing, use and disclosure of private files, and the unauthorized modification or destruction of files and systems. There is a need to regulate the use of computer software and prevent its unauthorized use and handling.
Solutions Suggested: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. All companies should develop and maintain clear and robust policies for safeguarding critical business data and sensitive information, protecting their reputation and discouraging inappropriate behavior by employees. 2. The employees should be trained to avoid unethical use of software, and if they witness any such unethical use, they should report the same to the higher authorities. 3. Awareness should be created amongst the public on ethical use of software. 4. There should be stricter implementation of provisions in Information Technology Act in the event of unethical use of software, thereby amending provisions in the Information Technology Act 2000.

Duration: 12 months
Problem Identified: A study on the Impact of COVID 19 on consumers buying behaviour for Two-wheeler segment
Problem Details: Impact of COVID 19 on consumers buying behaviour for Two-wheeler segment
Solutions Suggested: After analyzing the findings, the following suggestions have been prepared. Great care has been taken in making these suggestions for the improvement of consumer's opinion. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ❖ There is a high demand for Honda motorcycles in the market, so their supply has to be drastically improved so as to meet the demand of the customer. ❖ Some of the respondents had suggested improving the mileage of Yamaha and Honda Bikes. ❖ A considerable number of respondents opined that there is a need to improve the technology of TVS bikes. ❖ A vast majority of the respondents felt the design of Hero bikes should be changed so as to attract the customers. ❖ The bikes recently introduced by Bajaj are mostly concerned about youth. So, they should also consider middle-aged people while manufacturing.

Co- Investigator Team Members:	Dharmendra Kumar
Duration:	12 months
Problem Identified:	Digital Financial services relevance
Problem Details:	Demand and supply disruption during COVID-19 for essential commodity
Solutions Suggested:	As COVID-19 continues to spread, the risks for supply chains continue to increase. This event highlights the need for businesses to invest in risk planning and management strategies. Those that have the best plans in place and those who are the most agile are likely to cope best. In the short term, businesses must actively consider how demand and supply will be affected by COVID-19 and plan for this accordingly. Businesses should be sure to capture and record as much information about the supply chain impacts of COVID-19, as this will be useful for risk management and contingency planning going forwards. The impact of COVID-19 on commodity markets may persist for an extended period. In the short-term, the deepening economic contraction may further reduce demand for industrial commodities, causing additional declines in prices. Continuing mitigation measures may increasingly impact supply chains, potentially threatening food security for the most vulnerable groups.

Project Closure Report
Investigator Name for: Dr Rashi Mittal
Co- Investigator Team Members: Dr Meenu Shant Priya
Duration: One Year
Problem Identified: Analysis of Job satisfaction of Employees of HDFC
Problem Details: Job satisfaction is the measure source for productivity of the organization with the help of this study we need to understand the job satisfaction level of the employee in the HDFC organization.
Solutions Suggested: After analysing the feedback given by the employees, the following suggestions can be considered to improve the job satisfaction level: ♣ Since all major banks are fully computerised, some of the older employees are not well versed with the usage of computers; thorough training should be given to such employees as it will help them to carry out their job more efficiently. ♣ HDFC is facing tough competition with banks like ICICI, HSBC, SBI etc. Therefore, the staff should be trained so that they can face the competition. They should be adequately trained about the modern ways of banking. ♣ The software and hardware equipments should be maintained properly so that work can be carried out smoothly. ♣ Technical know – how should be considered before transferring an employee. This will increase the productivity of the employees. ♣ Job rotation should be done especially for clerical jobs, as the same kind of work leads to boredom. ♣ Strong emphasis should be laid on team work. ♣ Leaders must stress on team building. ♣ Employees must be encouraged to participate in decision making. The employee giving the most valuable suggestion must be rewarded. ♣ Team work must be compulsorily rewarded to further motivate employees. ♣ The rigid policies of promotion must be done away with. Instead, deserving employees must be promoted. This will lead to better job satisfaction. ♣ The democratic way of looking at things is obsolete. It hampers growth. Hence, managers must have a global view. ♣ Rewarding system should be made more transparent. ♣ Each department should select “Employee of the month”. That particular employee must be rewarded for his/her hard work. This type of social recognition leads to high self esteem in the employee thus, leading to better job satisfaction. ♣ Informal get-togethers can be organised in order to facilitate better relationships among the employees.

Solutions Suggested:	In the current work, several different models and methods have been used to obtain the result by computations to evaluate and study the supply chain performances regarding the research problems. By integrating the whole reduction of the costs in supply chain segments that consists of the costs and expenses in supply, production, and distribution, we proposed to solve the research problems by reducing and minimizing the missing investing money. The more cost-oriented supply chain decision making is, the higher expected investment on integrated functions of supply, production and distribution will be. Meanwhile, the bottlenecks will be tackled and solved fundamentally from early steps in supply chain to make the products at end, with achieving the supply chain profitability and assets.

Problem Details:	To Study the customers' awareness and satisfaction about E-Wallet services. To know their security concerns about related services
Solutions Suggested:	Word to Mouth publicity have higher impact on information spread compare to other methods such as advertisement on social media, Magazine, TV and Government promotion. So companies and government both should create awareness by organising cashless society workshops/seminars at school, college, workplace etc. Government can makes it mandatory for all schools/colleges/institutes to have at least one program in one academic year. E-Wallet are used for mobile/DTH recharge purpose. The second most option preferred by users is online shopping. Authority must make fees payment and filing of IT returns compulsorily with E-wallets only to increase the growth rate of the same

Investigator Name for: Dr. M. THIRUNAVUKKARASAN
Co- Investigator Team Members: DR.P.MUTHUSAMY
Duration: 12 Months
Problem Identified: IMPACT OF TEXT CLASSIFIERS IN NEWS MEDIA
Problem Details: The text-based classification system can extract massive datasets from social media for fast and timely information extraction that can help early stage decisions. This is possible only due to real time surveillance where a text system is inter connected for accurate analysis. The noise present in the textual content degrades the performance of any classification system. The issue of noise is addressed in research studies that damage the interpretation of ML classifiers during the learning phase and raise serious issues in classification. We referred this noise representation in textual data as misrepresentation ratio (MRR). It is important to address that due to data related misrepresentation the classifiers are unable to learn and generalize the classification system. Further, it degrades the overall classification system and results in low accuracies.
Solutions Suggested: All the classifiers along with all train-test protocols learn significantly different concepts from the datasets due to their different train-test criteria rather than using a single type of train test splits, single dataset and a single classifier. Although, in our Meta-model implementation, we choose N=5 i.e. five datasets, five different classifiers and five different sets of train-test protocols while it can work with any value of N for datasets, classifiers, and train-test protocols. Following are summarized conclusions of this project work. Classification task in data mining can be well modeled from a system perspective. Composite or holistic meta-model based process of classification gives improved accuracy than individualistic approaches.

Problem Identified:	Understand consumer behaviour and purchasing motives of youths in India
Problem Details:	How analytics tools help to understand consumer behaviour and purchasing motives of youths in India
Solutions Suggested:	Online buying behavior researchers, majorly explores demographics influence on the buying intentions and adoption stages. However, there is no systematic interpretation about how the first time buyer is likely to continue with buying online or would like to intensify or pull more of existent products available offline. Deductive theory approach has been utilized to identify main factors influencing different stages of online buying. Psychological theories are utilized to understand behavior of an individual which is extensively employed to predict "information system" or "technology" adoption behavior. Further, extending and applying the same framework to understand "online buying behavior" in business to consumer (B2C) setting of E-Commerce. The relation between internet as an invention and its broadening application in business activities can be labeled both as a driver and result of consumer's online behavior, which needs exploration. Interestingly, time-saving and convenience are long been associated with adoption of online mode is contradictory to the strengthening mall-culture and retail-chains, emergence in even developing countries like India.

1. To identify the factors, influence the governance of business process outsourcing The research objectives can be divided into following sub-questions: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To evaluate service provider capabilities in different service types • To utilize this information in outsourcing vendor selection and governance • The key success factors in service outsourcing
Solutions Suggested:
Outsourcing strategy needs to align with the overall business strategy of the company and have clearly defined targets and analysis of the current state. Resourcing activities, such as gathering detailed knowledge about the current situation, costs and quality of current service need to be utilized when forming the outsourcing strategy. Outsourcing strategy also needs to answer whether existing resources within the company can be utilized for meeting the defined targets and goals or whether it is preferable to utilize outsourced services.
