Description (min 150 to max 800 words) *

Galgotias University's Department of Pharmacy organized a two-day international conference on '3D Medicines, Biopharmaceutical Innovation and Regulatory Preparedness for a Sustainable Future' at its New Auditorium, C-Block, Galgotias University, Greater Noida, on 13- 14 March 2026. The conference was funded by the Anusandhan National Research Foundation (ANRF) under the Science and Engineering Research Board (SERB) Seminar/Symposia Scheme.

The purpose of the conference was to bring together researchers, academicians, industry professionals, and students on a common platform to discuss advances in 3D-printed medicines, biopharmaceutical innovation, drug delivery systems, regulatory science, nanomedicine, and translational pharmaceutical research.

The conference featured several eminent speakers from both international and national institutions. Among them, Prof. Ts. Dr. Liew Kai Bin from the University of Cyberjaya, Malaysia, delivered a highly engaging keynote on patient-centric innovations in oral drug delivery. He showcased innovative approaches, including chocolate-based drug delivery and probiotic oral thin films, emphasizing the integration of functional foods and advanced technologies to improve patient adherence and therapeutic efficacy. Another notable national speaker was Prof. (Dr.) Prakash Katakam, founder of 3DFying in Hyderabad, India, who shared valuable insights and examples demonstrating the applications of 3D printing in pharmacy and pharmaceutical sciences. Several India-based speakers also delivered insightful presentations, including Professor Indrajit Roy from Delhi University, who presented his latest research on biophotonic immuno-nanocomplexes and their use in photothermal and immunotherapy to treat breast cancer, while Prof. (Dr.) Sangeeta Choudhary of Sir Ganga Ram Hospital in Delhi discussed stem cell therapy and gene therapy and the various challenges associated with their translation into real-world clinical practice. On day 2, thematic presentations were delivered by individuals, including Prof. (Dr.) Zeenat Iqbal from Jamia Hamdard, New Delhi; Dr. Suman Sinha from GLA University, Mathura; and Dr. Minakshi Garg from Delhi Pharmaceutical Sciences and Research University (DPSRU), New Delhi, on regulatory pathways & pharmaceutical innovations related to the development of 3-D Medicines and Biopharmaceutical formulations. There were opportunities for young researchers at the conference through oral & poster presentations; the goal was to promote interest in and disseminate innovative research. The conference concluded with a valedictory session, followed by cultural events. This reflected the overall success of the conference & a further opportunity to build collaborative relationships across disciplines and to promote academic excellence.
