The language, attitudes, and behavior of others play a crucial role in promoting inclusion of people with invisible disabilities in social and professional settings. People who do not have disabilities should be open to discussing them, appreciate those who do, and be careful about how they speak about disability. No one will be left behind, according to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development of the United Nations, which also stresses the importance of full and equal involvement for people with disabilities. Therefore, greater awareness of disability discourse and research is required to meet the Sustainable Development Goals by 2030.

The Galgotias University Disability Rights Clinic is sharing in this enormous duty to fulfill its purpose of equality for people with disabilities.
